

CEIPES hosts the 4th project meeting

On 10 July, the consortium of the Erasmus+ project "Passion for Inclusion" (P4I) (project number: 2021-1-DE02-KA220-ADU-000035138) met in Palermo for its 4th Transnational Meeting. This meeting was organized by the Italian partner CEIPES and brought together the project partners to discuss the progress made so far and to plan future steps.

The "P4I" project aims to promote the training of actors who play a key role in the sexuality education of people with intellectual disabilities. In addition, it seeks to foster the development of professional skills of educators and the empowerment of families of persons with disabilities through innovative ICT-based learning tools.

During the meeting, constructive discussions were held on the intellectual outputs already developed and next steps were discussed. As a result of these efforts, the aim is to create a learning and teaching toolkit called "Sexual Education Model Learning/Teaching Toolkit" and its App. This toolkit consists of three different modules aimed at the main actors in sexuality education: special education teachers, parents/caregivers of individuals with intellectual disabilities and individuals with intellectual disabilities. In order to be able to develop the training, the partners have so far carried out analyses of the current situation through questionnaires and workshops for carers and for professionals working and living with people with intellectual disabilities.

The next steps of the project will take place in September in Cappadocia where a training will be held for both parents and people with intellectual disabilities to test the training.

The "P4I" consortium is enthusiastic about the progress made so far and is committed to continue working towards the inclusion of people with intellectual disabilities in sexuality education. These efforts will not only benefit individuals with disabilities, but will also contribute to building a more inclusive and equitable society as a whole.
